

Charlynne, Davide and Jenny Burgess are appearing in "Abduction" at Richland College through Saturday.

Theater talents are a family trait

A mother, son and daughter are pulling their musical and theatrical talents together in Richland College's production of "Abduction."

The musical will run through Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Performance Hall. Tickets are free, but those interested should contact the school for reservations.

Charlynne Burgess, a professional singer who has studied at the Juilliard

School, appears in the chorus. She is taking theater courses at Richland.

Daughter Jenny attended Smith College and was graduated from SMU with a B.S.A. in theater. David, a student at Richland, studied with Ross Powell at SMU and teaches clarinet at Jackson Junior High School.

David is in the orchestra, and Jenny is choreographer for the vaudeville-type production.
